In reply to the enquiry made, whether it was practicable to make any reduction in the strength of the European Chief Con-

of Police states that it has not been found practicable to do so; and that he considers that the number of European Chief Constables, is by no means excessive when the strength of the Garrison, &
the European & Eurasian population are taken into Consideration.

General No. 95 } 1885. 86
No. 14

Sir,

I have the honor to acknowledge your letter C No. 503/250 dated the 27th Ultimo and in reply to inform, that a further reduction in the number of Chief Constables has not been found practicable.

In deference to the Resident's & Mr. Lyall's remarks expressed in the Administration Report of 82-83, and alluded to in your letter C No. 751/384 dated 28th June 84, a vacancy in the rank of European Chief Constable was conferred on a Native Head Constable of promise, thus leaving in the Force Seven European Chief Constables" of these, one is entirely for Railway duty "a number by no means excessive when the strength of the Garrison, the European and Eurasian population, and the many Calls made on the European Constable is considered.

From a return I received the end

Office. This will have been put up & never, or very rarely, got a complete file

24/6

The numbers can very largely be reduced since.

end of last year from the Assistant Adjutant General Bangalore Division, the strength of the British Troops is close on 2000, with Natives attached 2900. Native Troops 3699; and with Natives attached 3864-6 this, has to be added - the Commissariat & Transport Department and European Pensioners, several of whom are at times, about pay day, troublesome.

In forwarding in 1883 my proposition for revision of the Force, I fully considered to what extent reductions in each grade could be made, and from experience decided, it would be very undesirable to have the Force short handed as regards Europeans; to the fact of their presence I attribute to a considerable extent the station being Comparatively speaking "free from rows" and "breaches of the peace"; a soldier under the influence of drink pays but little respect to a Native Constable or Officer, and in the same way the Registered Prostitutes; in the absence of Lines, living in all parts of the Station.

Independent of the utility of the European Chief Constable so far as the soldiery are concerned, and the fact touching European Troops, that in a climate like Bangalore they are able for 9 months in the year to be out at all hours, and are so; their presence gives considerable weight at the several large gatherings of Natives during the year, E.G. at the Muharram, Ramzan, Holi Feast, &c; in investigation of Cases in Barracks, and also in matters reported by Europeans and better class of Eurasians - invariably the European Police Officer is sent for; demand on these Officers services are many and Consequently a reduction in the existing number of, European Chief Constables is in my opinion not practicable.
